You want to know how to measure the operational performance of your key work systems and processes, including productivity, cycle time, and other appropriate measures of process effectiveness, efficiency, and innovation. In order to do that, you need the answer to do your employees have a safe and healthy work environment? The problem is do you have any information about working environment measurements, which makes you feel asking how will the process owner and team be able to hold the gains? We believe there is an answer to problems like what kind of policies does your organization have to support employee health. We understand you need to implement and manage your work processes to ensure that they meet design requirements which is why an answer to 'does work have an influence on behaviours?' is important. Here's how you do it with this book: 1. Make sure that your work has the best chance of reducing health inequalities 2. Control the overall costs of your work processes 3. Maintain a safe, secure, healthy work environment So, what hazards does the work environment involve? This EHS Manager Critical Questions Skills Assessment book puts you in control by letting you ask what's important, and in the meantime, ask yourself; does the team have regular meetings? So you can stop wondering 'does the team have the knowledge to assess safety and health risks?' and instead maintain a safe, secure, and healthy work environment. This EHS Manager Guide is unlike books you're used to. If you're looking for a textbook, this might not be for you. This book presents an approach—termed MERITT (Maximizing EHS Returns by Integrating Tools and Talents)—for enhancing process development through better integration of environmental, health, and safety evaluations. It draws upon critical components of inherent safety, pollution prevention, green chemistry, and related paradigms through selective adoption and adaptation of their existing tools, skills, and knowledge resources. MERITT offers ways of enhancing existing best practices of organizations that are recognized leaders in developing and conducting coordinated EHS evaluations through increased awareness and recognition throughout all levels of the organization (engineers, chemists, project managers, and business leaders). Special Details: Hardcover. Co-publishing venture between CWRT and CCPS. In March 2008, a report was issued which reviewed the Nat. Nanotechnology Initiative (NNI), a multi-agency effort. The NNI coordinates the nanotechnology-related activities of 25 federal agencies that fund nano-scale research or have a stake in the results. A key research area related to studying the potential environmental, health, and safety (EHS) risks that may result from exposure to nano-scale materials. Here is a summary of the findings of the 3/08 report, focusing on: (1) the extent to which selected agencies conducted EHS research in FY2006; (2) the reasonableness of the agencies' and the NNI's processes to identify and prioritize EHS research; and (3) the effectiveness of the agencies' and the NNI's process to coordinate EHS research.
