Aging of U.S. Air Force Aircraft Nov 01 2020 Many of the aircraft that form the backbone of the U.S. Air Force operational fleet are 25 years old or older. A few of these will be replaced with new aircraft, but many are expected to remain in service an additional 25 years or more. This book provides a strategy to address the technical needs and priorities associated with the Air Force's aging airframe structures. It includes a detailed summary of the structural status of the aging force, identification of key technical issues, recommendations for near-term engineering and management actions, and prioritized near-term and long-term research recommendations.

Field Service Manual, 1914 Oct 24 2022 Excerpt from Field Service Manual, 1914: Infantry Battalion (Expeditionary Force) For purposes of administration, the details of battalion head quarters including the machine gun section (other than the battalion commander, senior major, adjutant, medical officer and quartermaster) are posted to companies of the battalion as supernumerary to the establishment of platoons. Their distribution is at the discretion of the battalion commander, but should be so arranged that the numbers so posted to companies shall be approximately equal. With the exception of the warrant officer and staff serjeants, the details of the battalion headquarters and machine gun section (other than officers) will sleep and mess with their companies, or otherwise as the battalion commander may direct.
