the Plan and Scope of the Exhibit Departments These great Courts, three in number - the Court of the Four Seasons; the Court of the Sun and Stars; and the Festival Court - will,
with their extensions, pierce the great central quadrangle from the richly planted Grand Esplanade on the north to the wonderful semi tropical garden

Description: Includes advice about the "reception, care, and disposal" of exhibited goods, general regulations, and deadlines for securing space before the fair and for removing property afterwards. Excerpt from Premium List and Regulations of the Eighth National Exhibition of the United States Agricultural Society: At Cincinnati, Ohio, September 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th, 1860. No Exhibitor or Exhibitor's agent can act as Judge on the class in which he exhibits. And during the examination by the Judges, if any person interferes with them, by letter or otherwise, he will be excluded from the competition. But Exhibitors, when requested, are expected to make verbal or written statements concerning their contributions. Such statements, if of interest, will be published. Exhibitors of implements and machines will bear in mind that the object of the United States Agricultural Society is not merely to have a useful and an attractive display, but to give currency to those inventions and improvements which are likely to benefit the public at large. The awards are published in the Journal of Agriculture, and successful competitors can have engravings of their machines or implements inserted, free of charge, if properly executed cuts are placed in the Secretary's hands prior to the first of October. Engravings of premium animals will also be inserted in the Journal of Agriculture free of expense. Exhibiting members (ladies or gentlemen) each pay a fee of three dollars, which entitles them to enter as many different animals for exhibition as they may own; but they must pay separate fees in each instance when they act as agents for others. When a firm exhibit, only one member is entitled to an Exhibitor's ticket. Exhibitors' tickets entitle the holders to free admission during the Exhibition, but are not transferable; and any Exhibitor known to transfer his ticket will forfeit his privileges, be excluded from the grounds thenceforth, and be deprived of any premiums awarded him. Each Exhibitor is notified that entries are received under the above conditions, which will be strictly adhered to. A complete guide to successful trade shows and exhibitions Trade shows, consumer shows, product launches, sporting events, and other opportunities to interact face-to-face with customers have become an important part of the marketing mix. Recent studies show that the percentage of the total marketing communications budget spent on event marketing ranged from over 9% to a staggering

29%. In 2003, North America alone hosted over 13,000 trade and consumer shows, each one with hundreds of exhibitors, and thousands of visitors. Beyond traditional trade shows, there are countless other opportunities for exhibitors to interact with their customers directly and improve the bottom line, such as mall displays, corporate events, road shows, and permanent displays. Well chosen and executed events can shorten the sales cycle significantly and put you miles ahead of the competition, but you need to have an exhibit plan that's well thought out, organized, and executed. While some large organizations have a dedicated exhibit staff, often the role of exhibit management lands on the desk of an unsuspecting, overworked, or unwilling sales or marketing person who needs to get results from their exhibit investment, but doesn't know where to start. The Power of Exhibit provides the step-by-step advice you need to exhibit successfully. This definitive guide to trade shows and other event marketing shows how to set objectives, budget for your event and measure its success in ROI, choose the right show and find the right audience, turn leads into business, design booths, work the show, gather information and intelligence, and much more. Excerpt from Woman's International

Exhibition, 1900, Earl's Court, London, S. W: List of Exhibitors in the British and Irish Silk Industry Section in the Ducal Hall At the close of the Royal Jubilee Exhibition held in Manchester in 1887, a Silk Conference was held, and the Silk Association of Great Britain and Ireland was the outcome of that Conference. The Association mainly had its origin in the strong recommendation of Lord Stanley of Preston, who was at that time President of the Board of Trade. His Lordship said: We feel very much at the Board of Trade that We need some central organisation which would make us in touch with the silk industry of this country, for we know very well that our returns are very imperfect We want instructing a good deal we have a great deal to tell such an Association, and we hope that one of the principal resolutions of the Conference that is about to be held at Manchester will be the appointment of a Silk Association. Lord Stanley sent down Mr. Bateman, of the Board of Trade, who himself actually framed the resolution which was the birth of the Association. Excerpt from The Awards and Claims of Exhibitors at the International Exhibition, 1876: Containing the Official Awards, With the Respective Claims of Each

Exhibitor, and the General Reports of the Judges in the Departments Textile Materials, Fabrics, and Machinery The descriptions of the establishments which are appended to the awards are called claims, as no better word has occurred to express their principal object, - that of designating the distinctive facts in the history of the establishments or the qualities of their products claimed by the proprietors. The claims in all cases have been furnished or written by the respective proprietors; and the work, therefore, has the unique character of a collection of autobiographies of the American textile manufacturers whose eminence has been established by the highest possible official recognition. The importance of these purely original and authoritative contributions, which will hereafter serve as memoirs for a comprehensive history of American industries, will be equally appreciated by practical men and scholars. A large portion of the work is occupied by the general reports of the judges at the Exhibition, which will speak for themselves. They comprise all the reports in the textile department. Their individual value, it is believed, will be enhanced by their being grouped together as they are in this volume, while the opportunity for verifying or correcting them is afforded by the descriptive claims. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
